Reading Aloud

- Read aloud a given passage

Simon's parents believed that everyone in the household should share the responsibility of keeping the house clean and tidy. "Don't forget to mop the floor today," Simon's mother reminded him gently before she went out to do her weekly marketing.

"Oh no! It's my turn again!" Simon cried as he checked the duty roster which his parents had drawn up for the family. "I have a lot of homework to do today!"

Simon's sister, Linda, heard his complaint. She went up to Simon and offered to help him. "Don't worry, Brother. With an extra pair of hands, I'm sure the floor will be sparkling clean in no time!" Linda assured Simon.

Simon's face immediately lit up. "I have no reason to reject your offer, have I?" he said with a smile.
